Local business coach Patrick Frazier earns executive coaching certification from Gazelles International

Granger, IN, October 12, 2015 — Local business coach Patrick Frazier achieved Gazelles International executive coaching certification this October, completing a rigorous program including leadership and service obligations. He joins a mere 50 other coaches worldwide who have earned certification status from Gazelles International, a premier international executive education and coaching association.

"Pat is a great addition to our worldwide network of certified coaches. He brings particular skills helping companies become and stay competitive," said Keith Cupp, president and head coach of Gazelles International. "With his certification credential, which includes extensive training in the Four Decisions™ and Rockefeller Habits processes and growth tools, he is well-situated to successfully assist mid-market companies in accelerating their growth."

The certification program is based on the growth concepts in the best-selling business book "Mastering the Rockefeller Habits" by Gazelles International founder Verne Harnish, as well as the signature Gazelles One-Page Strategic Plan. It includes requirements such as the study and mastery of the Four Decisions™ content, application of best practices, and ongoing education by the world's top thought leaders such as Jim Collins and Patrick Lencioni.

Patrick has more than 10 years of business and coaching experience, including Resource Associates Corporation, Total Quality Institute, Rising Stars, and Adventures in Attitude. As President of The Coaching Authority, Patrick Frazier brings over 25 years of experience in project leadership, process development, and team building. Patrick is known for measurable results by providing clients with personalized processes and support materials to help turn their goals into reality.
